Originally conceived to mark Montgomery Gentry's 20th anniversary, their dynamic new album "Here's To You" now represents the triumphant start to a new legacy. On September 8, 2017, Troy Gentry died in a helicopter crash at the age of 50. The new collection, which was recorded before his death, serves as a reminder of the iconic pair's powerful presence and also points to fruitful future for Eddie Montgomery and the Montgomery Gentry brand.

The album's title, "Here's To You," is both a tribute to Troy and to the band's rabid fans. "We don't call them fans, we call them friends," says Eddie. "They're who got us our deal."

AN EVENING WITH BILL WALTON

BASKETBALL LEGEND, BROADCASTER, HUMANITARIAN

SEPT 20

7:00 pm

Tickets: $30 - $55

Bill Walton has a passion — for his work, family and friends, music, life and for greatness! Bill brings his outsized passion to the stage and inspires audiences with tales from an improbable life in sports and beyond. Walton speaks about the secrets of world-class performance, personal and organizational excellence, and how he overcame nearly impossible odds — on the court and off — to persevere and win. As entertaining as he is insightful, Walton is widely considered one of the best speakers from the world of sports.

The lessons Bill learned on the basketball court became life lessons that served him well throughout his sports, broadcasting and business careers. No lesson was more important than the words from the legendary John Wooden, Bill's basketball coach at UCLA, who simply said, "Do your best." Wooden never asked players to go out and win — simply to do their best and not beat themselves. Walton never forgot those words, which helped him throughout his extraordinary career. Following a celebrated college basketball career, Walton went on to have a Hall of Fame NBA career.
